(From a letter received from Mrs. L. W. McCown, of Johnson City, Tenn.)

"The land of Jonathan G. Haynes was on Rock Creek in the Greasy Cove which later was made into Unicoi County in 1875. Part of Carter and part of Washington County were used to form this new County after the Civil War. So it may be that Jonathan G. Haynes sold his land in Unicoi County if he sold it around 1870. The McInturff settlement was near what is now Unicoi village, just below Erwin, the county seat of Unicoi County. The Unicoi records are intact, as they date only from 1875. The 7th district of Washington County, Tennessee was made into Unicoi County. It was near Nolachucky river. This land adjoined land in Carter County. Buffalo Creek comes down from Unicoi County and Rock Creek is up near the mountains, and near where there is the forest reserve now.

"George Grayson Haynes married Margaret McInturff, daughter of Old John McInturff - at head of Buffalo Creek, early settler.

"Tradition about George Haynes and Margaret McInturff -- "Mathew Taylor, son of old Andrew Taylor Taylor I the first Taylor in Washington County, North Carolina, married Rachel Peoples. Their daughter, Rhoda married David Haynes, son of George Haynes (Heins) who was a native of Germany, and came to America settling in Virginia about the time of the Revolutionary War. He enlisted and while passing through the Watauga Country as a soldier, he saw and fell in love with a pretty black eyed Scotch girl, daughter of a farmer named John McInturff. After the war he returned and married her and settled at the head of Buffalo Creek, on land given them by her father. There they raised a dozen of children, one of whom was David, a most unique character, a whole show Himself" -- "George Haynes, the ancestor of the tribe -- was a musician and could play the fiddle; it seemed to have been a talent in the family - it came on down the line - to the Taylors, those with Haynes blood in their veins, for the others could hardly decently sing Old Hundred."

"The first daughter of George and Margaret W. Haynes was named Mary Magdalen and she married George Swingle, I in 1807. This couple lived near the Haynes homestead, in Buffalo Valley, now Unicoi County, then Washington County, near the headwater of Buffalo Creek. This was later Carter County, and in 1875 made into Unicoi County. The Old Swingle Cemetery is at the head of Buffalo Creek - and it may be that George Haynes is there buried."

GOVERNOR NAT. E. HARRIS OF GEORGIA

(From The Atlanta Journal, June 28, 1915)

Governor Harris's Ability Was Handed Down By Noted Ancestors.

State's new Executive is descended from best stock of Virginia and Tennessee

History of his career

Nathaniel E. Harris who was Saturday inaugurated governor of Georgia, was born at the old homestead of his family near Jonesboro, Tennessee, on January 21, 1846; his father was Dr. Alexander Nelson Harris; his mother, before her marriage was Miss Edna Haynes. Dr. Alexander Nelson Harris, descended from old Virginia stock, was a physician and preacher and was a famous orator of his time. Believing ardently in secession, he canvassed East Tennessee in joint debate with Andrew Johnson when the state left the union. He aided in raising several regiments for the Confederacy and finally became chief surgeon of the 69th, Tennessee Infantry under Colonel John W. Crawford. Dr. Harris was related to Isham G. Harris who was Governor of Tennessee and afterward became United States Senator from that state.

An old citizen who had often heard Dr. Harris speak, once said of him: "He is the most powerful speaker I ever heard. He can open his mouth and his words tear up the ground in front of him."

Edna Haynes Harris, the mother of Georgia's new Governor, was a sister of Landon C. Haynes, called "the eagle orator of Tennessee" and of Mrs. Nat. G. Taylor, wife of a Tennessee Congressman. Two of the latter's sons, Bob and Alf Taylor, were famous Tennessee writers, humorists and lecturers, and ran against each other for Governor of the state. Governor Harris is, therefore, a first cousin of the Taylor brothers.

Landon C. Haynes was one of the leading lawyers in East Tennessee, represented his state as a senator in the Confederate Congress throughout the war. Alexander H. Stephens is reputed to have said of him, that Haynes had more brains than any other man in congress.

Inherited His Ability

From these illustrious forbears Governor Harris comes naturally by his taste for the law and his noted gift of eloquence. He was the oldest of eleven children. He attended the common schools of his neighborhood near Jonesboro, went to Boone's Creek Academy, and afterward to old Martin Academy in Jonesboro. At the outbreak of the Civil War he was less than sixteen years old, but in spite of his tender age he enlisted in Blair's infantry, in January, 1862. This company was commanded by Blair, a Presbyterian minister, and was raised in the counties of Washington and Knox, in East Tennessee. Eventually the company, after varied active service, became a part of the 63rd Tennessee Infantry regiment as Company D.

In the fall of 1862 Private Nathaniel E. Harris was detached from his command and ordered to report for duty at the department headquarters. After serving for a time on General Wm. E. Jones' staff, he was assigned to the 16th Virginia Cavalry, attached to the 2nd Corps in the Army of Northern Virginia and in this service he continued until the end of the war.

GOVERNOR NAT E. HARRIS OF GEORGIA (con't)

As the cavalry did not surrender with Lee at Appomattox, Governor Harris, with about 1500 other cavalymen, started over to Johnson's army, and was finally disbanded by President Jefferson Davis at Charlotte North Carolina, on April 23, 1865. During his service in the Confederate Army, Gov. Harris took part in 12 pitched battles and about 60 skirmishes, and was under fire almost every day during the last months of the war.

On returning from the war, Governor Harris found that the old home near Jonesboro had been occupied for sometime by a brigade of Federal cavalry and had suffered serious damage, all the fences being burned the forests cut down and practically nothing left but the house. Soon after this there broke out in East Tennessee what was known as "Brownlow's War", which was nothing more or less than an organized court persecution and a guerilla warfare by Union sympathized with or fought for the Confederacy. Houses and lands were fraudently confiscated, men and women were shot down in cold blood.

To escape the reign of terror, a number of the best families of East Tennessee abandoned their homes and sought refuge elsewhere. Among those who moved to Georgia were the Inmans, Sawtells, Wilsons and others, who have prospered in their new homes and become leading citizens of their respective cities.

Governor Harris rented some land at Pine Log, Bartow County, near the place where Mrs Cora Harris, the writer, has recently built a splendid home, and there farmed for three years, making enough to take care of his mother and the younger children. His father died near Kingston Georgia.

Then he borrowed from Alexander H. Stephens, who had been associated with his kinsmen in the Confederate Congress, enough money to pay his way through college and entered the University of Georgia in 1867. Three years later, in the class of 1870, he graduated with first honor. While at the University he was a member of Eta Chapter of the Chi Phi Fraternity. After graduating he went to Sparta Georgia in Hancock County, taught the children of Judge Linton Stephens and studied law under that famous Georgian. Also he established, with A. Miller Dubose, The Hancock Sentinel which afterwards became the Sparta Ishmaelite.

In October 1872, he was admitted to the bar, and in February 1873 he married Miss Fannie T. Burke, a daughter of Rev. John W. Burke, of Macon Georgia. In the spring of 1898 Gov. Harris lost his wife, who left six children, as follows:- Mrs. Carrie E. Hazelhurst, General Walter A. Harris, Mrs. Fannie B. Wallace, John B. Harris, David W. Harris, Nat. E. Harris, Jr., the latter died in 1902. The Governor's present wife was Miss Hattie Gibson Jobe, daughter of Dr. Abram Jobe, distinguished physician and surgeon of Carter County, Tennessee.

In 1882 Governor Harris was elected to the house of Representatives from Bib County, and served through the term of 1882-1883 and the term 1884-1885. During his service in the house he introduced the bill creating the Georgia School of Technology and has been chairman of the board of trustees of that institution since 1886.

(From the Atlanta Journal, November 1931 ALFRED A TAYLOR)

Alfred A. Taylor, born Taylor Community in Carter County, near Johnson City, Tennessee, August 6th, 1848, died, Wednesday, November 24, 1931, Johnson City Tennessee, Age 83. Survived by six sons, Nathaniel G. Taylor, Blaine Taylor, David Taylor, Robert Taylor, Alfred Taylor, Jr., and Frank Taylor, all of Johnson City, and two daughters, Mrs. Carter Williams, of Franklin Tennessee and Mrs. Frank Graf of Johnson City, Tennessee. Buried at Monta Visa Cemetery beside son, late Bne. H. Taylor.

"Uncle Alf" who lost his "War of the Roses" in 1886, built a house by the side of a road in Happy Valley. Alf was nominated for the governorship by the Republicans and his brother "Fiddling Bob", Robert Love Taylor, was nominated by the democrats. The two campaigned in the same buggy, debating by day and sleeping together by night. If their father, old Colonel Nathaniel Taylor, had not made the decision to let his sons fight it out, that campaign might have been still more of a family affair. One night Bob and Alf stopped at Bridgeport Alabama after a rally at Madisonville, Tennessee and their hostess, thrilled by the sentiment of the campaign, pinned a red rose on Alf and a white rose on Bob. "Wear these for your mother, I know she is proud of two sons who can differ so in politics and still love each other." So it became the "War of Roses". Alf entertained his crowd with his fox hunting tales and Bob fiddled. The fiddle won and Bob went to the Governor's Chair. Alfred Taylor graduated from Edge Hill School in Princeton N.J. and the Pennington N. J. Seminary, admitted to the bar in 1870 and in 1874 went to the legislature. He married Miss Jennie Anderson of Buffalo Valley in 1881 and had 10 sons and two daughters. Two sons died while young.

Alfred Taylor's mother, Emma Haynes, was the sister of the distinguished Landon C. Haynes.

Alfred gained nation-wide recognition as a chautauqua and lyceum lecturer. When Herbert Hoover spoke at Elizabethtown Tennessee during his presidential campaign in 1928, Alf Taylor was on hand to introduce him.

Alfred Taylor ran against his own brother, Robert Love Taylor, for the Governorship of Tennessee in 1886. Robert, Democrat, was elected

A Sketch of the Haynes Family
by William Washington Haynes

A Sketch of the genealogy of Christopher Haynes.

Christopher Haynes came to this country from England in company with General Mulinburg, under the authority of the British Government to look after the interest of England in this country, then known as the Colonies of North America, but now as the United States. Christopher Haynes came as an interpreter for the different languages that was spoken by different nationalities that were then in this country.

The date of their coming was somewhere about 1740 or 1742. After the business was ended with General Mulinburg, Haynes associated himself with two other gentlemen in the city of Philadelphia as Importers of merchandise, in about 1748, they were very successful in business until the death of Haynes, which was in 1763. The joint business was said to be worth $5,000,000. The two lining men gathered up all the money and left the country and were never heard of again. Haynes widow died in a few months from the shock. They left three children, one girl and two boys, these were bound out at different places to Godfathers and Godmothers, as was the order of orphan children in the Lutheran Church.

The eldest Boy, bearing his fathers name, Christopher Haynes, was put in a trade and became noted as a machinist and a lock maker and it was said he could make anything to be made out of iron and steel, he afterwards moved to Kentucky, there raised a large worthy and respectable family, filling many of the highest positions in the state. The girl married a man by the name of Selsor, a respectable farmer in West Virginia, and the youngest boy was named George Haynes. He was bound out to a German family, and was taken to Winchester Virginia, and was there cruelly treated by his Godmother, who was boss of the place and no opportunity given him for education. In 1776 when the war broke out between this country and Great Britain, young George Haynes, nineteen years old, volunteered and joined the army of the rebel forces. He enlisted for the war, which he served to the end. He served under Colonel William Washington until Washington was taken prisoner then he was frequently changed to different commands, during the war, through that hard contest, he was one of the many of Washington's daring band, who rescued Lieutenant Hazelwood and his sister from the hands of Clifford, a British Officer, who held them as prisoners and was at the time preparing to hang Lieutenant Hazelwood, at the time he was rescued by Captain Lee and fifteen or twenty who were with him.

After peace was made Haynes returned to Winchester Virginia and there soon after married Miss Margaret McInturff of Winchester; As grand a woman for all the christian virtues and amiability as ever breathed the breath of life. She became the mother of twelve children and was faithful and true until the end of a long and useful life. In one or two years after they were married they moved to South Carolina and were there engaged in farming one or two years. They then moved to Tennessee, there entered and bought five hundred and twenty acres of land on the line between Washington and Carter Counties. About an equal portion in each county, on a dividing ridge at the head water of Buffalo creek, running north through Carter County and at the head waters of Indian creek running south through Washington County, a very healthy location.

Cherokee Indians were then living in the South east part of that county and the white settlers had much trouble with them for several years, the Indians, the bears, the wolves and the panthers, were all enemies to the farmers interest, but they steadily kept their position and pressed forward until they conquered. All worked out a pleasant and comfortable home with bountiful supplies for all their wants, and there raised a family of twelve children, the two oldest were girls; then ten boys:—(1) Sarah, (2) Mary, (3) David, (4) George, (5) Christopher, (6) Abram, (7) Aaron, (8) James, (9) John, (10) Jonathan, (11) Joseph, (12) William Washington.

They both lived to see all their children grown and in business, they lived the last forty years of their lives active, zealous and useful members of the Methodist Church. Theirs was the home for the traveling preacher and all others who needed assistance, no one was turned away who was in need; they were all cared for with a kind word of sympathy and council; they extended a wonderful influence over all who knew them for their correct living and upright lives.

With kindness and love to all, and at the age of eighty-one years, George Haynes Sr., was taken up higher, where he could rest from his labors, his faithful wife soon thereafter followed to inherit the reward of the faithful in the Paradise of God.

"Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life."

Now as I have said there were twelve children, I will now take them in order of age. The first girl Sarah, married a man named George Longmire a farmer, and lived awhile in Washington County Tennessee, then moved to Indiana, entered land near the Wabash River in Fountain County, where they raised a large family of children, they have spread out and multiplied quite a number of respectable and useful men in the Western States.

The second girl was Mary. She married a man by the name of George Swingle, a well educated gentleman from Philadelphia. He was a fine Mechanic and a Millright by trade. He bought land in Washington County and one and a half miles south of Haynes, his father-in-law, and raised a large family of useful men and women.

The eldest boy was David. I might state right here, that the ten boys were all raised farmers under their father's direction, and at the age of sixteen years their father gave them liberty to work for themselves, so as they grew up eight of the ten learned the millright trade, and worked at it until they accumulated a farm or engaged in some other business; so David bought a large fine piece of land three miles from his father, on the Buffalo Creek, in Carter County. He married Rhoda Taylor, daughter of Matthew Taylor, a noble and amiable lady; they raised a large family of boys and girls. His eldest son Landon Carter Haynes was a prominent man in the state, a fine lawyer as well as an orator and senator for the Southern Confederacy from the state of Tennessee. One of David Haynes daughters, Emma Haynes, born April 20, 1822, married her cousin Nathaniel Taylor, and she is the mother of Gov. Taylor of Tennessee. Quite a number of his family are occupying high positions in the community in which they live.

The second boy was George L. Haynes. He like his brother, worked at his trade until he could go to farming and in a few years he went down in the Hiawassie district not far from Calhoun on the Hiawassie river. He married a Miss Anderson of Carter County, Tennessee, in about 1842. He moved to Texas and raised a good and respectable family, all prominent members of the Methodist Church. Some of them have gone to California and are doing well.

He was about thirty one years old when he died in Rhea County Tenn.

The eighth boy was Jonathan. He married a Miss Williams of Washington County Tennessee. Working at his trade and farming, they raised a family of energetic business boys. The tenth son was William Washington Haynes, born September 24, 1812. He worked on the farm for his father and mother, until he was twenty one years old, what schooling he got was a little in the winter months so as not to interfere with farming. When he was 21 years old he went to Highwassee

DORAN FAMILY

Nancy Doran's great-grandfather, on the mother's side, driven by Persecution, fled from Scotland to Ireland. His name was Gordon.

He and others were condemned to be hung because they were Protestants. They escaped by a ball of yarn and a vial of aquafortis. By these they destroyed the grates of the prison. Escaping at night, they reached the shores of Ireland the next day; their property was confiscated, - (Mr. Gordon's as well as that of others). His wife and one son were turned out to starve. A shepherd took her to the mountains and concealed her until the persecution was over. She was sent to her husband in Ireland.

Alexander Gordon, son of the above, came to America at an early date (about 1764). Margaret Gordon, daughter of the above, married James Doran. Her father opposed the marriage. Her mother consented and they were married twelve months before the father knew it.

This couple moved to America. They settled first in the State of Maryland and later removed to Washington County, Virginia.

In 1800, William Doran, son of James and Margaret (Gordon) Doran, moved to Middle Tennessee. He was a member of Hopewell Church, near Milton, Tennessee.

He told his children on his death bed that his hands had never taken a bribe and that they had never taken anything unjustly from the widow and orphan. His last words, "Jehovah's Children".

He died in 1834, professed religion in 1801. of this family there were three brothers and six sisters

Nancy Doran's mother was a Duff. The Duffs settled at first in North Carolina, in Guilford County. Later they removed to Washington County, Virginia

DORAN FAMILY

(From a letter from Rev. Paul E. Doran, Sparta, Tennessee, August 11, 1932 to Professor Lowery Alfred Doran, University of Oklahoma)

"I am descended from Robert Alexander Doran, who settled in Hampshire County, Virginia, in 1742 or three. He came from County Donegal, Ireland, in 1741 and lived for a year or two in New Jersey near Englishtown. Not liking life there, he came to Virginia and settled in Hampshire County, now West Virginia. There he reared a family and died there; his wife, according to the record I have, was Sarah Elizabeth Reed. To this union were born among others, William Doran and Alexander Doran. I mention Alexander because this is the one in whom you are probably interested. I am descended from William.

"This Alexander was born in about 1760-5. At fourteen or fifteen he entered the Revolutionary army under General Washington as a teamster, driving a munition wagon. He was cited for bravery under fire and was personally commended by Washington. After the war closed he was an overseer of part of the Fairfax estate and after Washington's death he came into possession of part of the land. Robert Alexander Doran was a man about fifty when the war started and served on Washington's staff. It is easy to see how his son should attract the attention of the General.

"Alexander married Elizabeth, daughter of John Lowery; their children were William, Joseph, John, James, Peter, Elizabeth, Alexander. Joseph settled at Sedan, Va., and reared a family and afterward moved to Ohio. John settled at Blacklick, Ohio, where some of his descendants still live. James also went to Ohio. Peter probably never married. Elizabeth married Joseph Caleb Smith and reared a family in Virginia where many of her descendants still live. Alexander was drowned in North River when he was just a young man unmarried. William married Hannah Guard and reared a large family some of whom went to Ohio while Dave and Samuel went to Cloud County Kansas. I know nothing further about the children of Alexander and I suppose you would not be interested in the family of William. I might tell you however, that William also served through the Revolution and was given a grant of land, one thousand acres, in the Cherokee Nation in what is now Overton County, Tennessee. He reared a family of twelve sons and two daughters, Mary and Elizabeth. Silas and Ambrose, twins, the youngest children of William Doran were the first to use steam in industry west of the mountains. My father, Marion, was the oldest son of Silas and will be ninety-three his next birthday. He is living now in retirement; he was a doctor by profession and was also an ordained minister in the Presbyterian Church, the ancestral church of the Dorans."

(From a letter from Rev. Paul E. Doran, Sparta, Tennessee, December 7, 1938)

"--- Alexander Doran was the son of James Doran who was born in Doran Castle in County Donegal, Ireland, and the third son of the Earl of Donegal. He came to New Jersey in 1741 and two years later settled in the Western part of Virginia at a place called Wolf Hills, now Abingdon. His son, Alexander Doran, may have been born before he left Ireland. Alexander became a man of prominence and at his death had an estate of ten thousand acres at Abingdon. Alexander had a very large family. Somewhere I have the names of his children but I cannot now find it. He and his son, William, my great grandfather, served throughout the Revolution. At least one other son served for awhile and was wounded in the battle of Kings Mountain. There is a story in our family of how Mary Doran and her mother worked a day and night getting bullets and powder ready and of how Mary hitched the old gray mare to the sled and took her load through the line of fire to her brother during the battle. Before the fight was over her sweetheart was dead and her brother badly wounded and so she took them both to her home in Abingdon on the sled. This Mary was a daughter of Alexander Doran. Later, she married Colonel Carter for whom Carter County was named, and lies buried near Elizabethton, Tennessee. Colonel Carter died leaving one son, and Mary married later a man named Lowery.

"At the death of Alexander Doran his children had some quarrel over the settlement of the estate and they all left Virginia. William got a grant of one thousand acres of land in Overton County, Tennessee, and moved there in 1796. John also came to Tennessee but I know very little of his family. George went to Philadelphia and his descendants are now in Pennsylvania and New York. Alexander went to Ohio where Columbus now is and many of them have been prominent there. One Doran was a member of Congress from that district until his death a few years ago. Alexander Doran, a surgeon in Columbus, and I used to correspond but I have not heard from him in a long time. Others went farther west and the family is numerous on San Francisco now.

"Back in the ancient days of the petty kings in Ireland the Dorans ruled Donegal for four hundred years. They lost their kingdom in about the year 1200.

"A few years ago I spent five weeks in Ireland and while there I saw Sir Henry Doran who owns the large ancestral estate of the Dorans in Donegal. He was at that time a member of the Irish Senate and one of the most influential men in Ireland. You probably know that the house of Doran is one of the oldest of Irish Nobility. While I was in Ireland I was shown much respect everywhere as soon as my name was known. At Belfast, at the Assembly where I spoke the clerk told me that nothing had happened in Ireland in more than a thousand years in which the Dorans had not had part. The reigning Earl in Donegal at the time of the Reformation was the first to sign the Irish Covenant in his blood, since which time the Dorans have been Presbyterian, except for a few strays in this country who have joined other churches.

"The name is common name in all the Gallic lands, in Ireland, Scotland, North England, France and even in the Gallic parts of Spain, but our family is Irish."

NOTE: Rev. Paul E. Doran's notes do not entirely agree with mine, but I have the family Bible records and wills to prove my line of descent.

PENSION RECORD OF JOSIAH MARTIN

W-1047 -- N. C.

State of Tennessee Rutherford County October 1832

On this day the 1st of October 1832 before James C. Mitchel one of the judges of the Circuit Courts in and for the State of Tennessee now sitting for said county of Rutherford at Murfreesborough personally appeared in open court Josiah Martin a resident in county aforesaid, aged about seventy-five years who being first duly sworn according to law, doth, on his oath, make the following declaration in order to obtain the benefit of the act of Congress passed June 7th, 1832.

Applicants father lived in Pennsylvania, Cumberland County, which being on the frontier and exposed to the depredations and murders of the Indians, caused him to move his family for security to an adjoining county where applicant was born in February 1757, as he has been informed by an older sister. He never had an exact record of his age. In the meantime his father was taken by the Indians, and on being released again settled with his family in Cumberland County applicant being then about two years old. He lived there till about the year 1765 when he moved to Lincoln County North Carolina. Applicant lived in Lincoln County North Carolina until the year 1803 when he moved to his present residence in Rutherford (Tennessee) where he has ever since continued to reside. He entered the service of the United States in Lincoln County North Carolina, as a volunteer, early in the spring of 1782, he can not state the precise time, but knows it was soon after the first alarm of disturbances from the Tories in his section of country after the British had taken Charleston or after they were about to take it. He belonged to a company of volunteers, about 15 or 20 in number generally, and commanded by Capt. Barber. There was no inferior officers who commanded in the company. Its movements was directed against the Tories of Lincoln and the adjoining county of Rutherford. One of its first expeditions was, in early corn planting time 1780, to the house of one Ambrose Mills of Rutherford County on White Oak Creek of Broad River, who was supposed to be raising a regiment of Tories. Barber's company stayed at Mill's a week or more, lived upon his meat and corn, and ranged in the neighborhood. Mills promised to be neutral, and the company returned home. They learned that Mills not regarding his promise raised a regiment of Tories, received the commission of Colonel from the British and was taken by the Whiggs in battle of Kings' Mountain and hung.

The next remarkable excursion applicant remembered to have made under Captain Barber was with the intention of surprising the Tories collecting at Ramsours' on the South fork of Catawba river above 20 miles from their homes. The company started one evening and went 9 or 10 miles and camped a little distance from the road in a very secluded place, leaving one man to watch if any one passed along the road. Some time in the night two men passed in a direction from Ramsours. Our watch hailed them, but they put spurs and rode on. They returned before day and in attempting to avoid our watch, came directly to the camp and were taken. Both these prisoners were Tories, one of them by name Moore was brother to the Moore who was then collecting the Tories at Ramsours. Learning from them that the Tories at Ramsours were too strong for us, we changed our march eastward in a direction across Catawba river at Tucksiegy Ford to General Rutherford's camp near Charlotte in Hecklenburgh County. We then recrossed at some ford with Rutherford's army, thence in direction to Ramsours.

We did not get there till a few hours after Col. Locke had arrived and defeated the Tories there under Moore. He found the bodies of men and horses that had been slain in the skirmish still lying on the ground. Our company then left General Rutherford's army in search of Tories in our neighborhood. Afterwards joined Col. McDowell, who was encamped on Broad River to act in defensive against Ferguson's army, pursued and overtook us the next day about 12 o'clock near Burlington's Ironworks. We repulsed them and drove them back to the main army. We then returned to McDowell's head quarters. This skirmish was about the time of Gates' defeat. A few were killed on both sides. In returning to head quarters, applicant received an accidental injury from a spear in the hand of a fellow soldier, in consequence of which he went home and remained there several weeks. He was not in the Battle of Kings Mountain though not far from his residence. Barber's company or most of them had become suspicious that Col. Graham was not true to their cause, and therefore refused to follow him, then he marched to join the other Colonials. He saw one Esq. Wilson then attempted to join a new company just raised, as they had heard, under Capt. Thompson who were aiming to surprise the foraging parties of the enemy about Charlotte. But the company was not raised and we returned and attempted to overtake some of our neighbors that had gone on to meet the forces against Ferguson but were prevented through danger of being taken by the Tories. Afterwards Barber fell in with a company of Major raised a company which applicant joined and marched with it to Morgan's camp on Packlet River near Gravel's. There he elected Thomas White our Captain. We remained in Camps with Morgan until the rains raised the waters when the militia were allowed to cross the Packlet for the purpose of procuring provisions. Two days afterwards Col. Thomas came along by our fires and asked where Major Barber was. We asked what was the matter. He said nothing much, but brother Ben was coming. We immediately recrossed the Packlet to Morgan's camp. Early in the morning the regulars commenced marching the militia being on horseback started about 12 o'clock and overtook the regulars the evening before the battle of the Cowpens. Col. Washington was there with his company of Calvary which amounted to 72 as counted by applicant the day before the battle. The other officers who commanded in that battle besides those already named, he recollects Col. Pickens of Militia and Maj. McDowell.

The battle was fought early in the morning in the open woods. At the termination of the battle our Capt. Thomas White was missing, but was there the next day when we returned from the pursuit. We then followed after Morgan who had gone on with the prisoners. After overtaking them Morgan and regulars left us, and we, with Col. Washington, collected the prisoners to York town where we were relieved by newly raised militia and permitted to return home about the last of January 1781. From this time to fall of same year he was in no service except in scouting parties under Capt. Isaac White a brave man. During the spring and summer he was pretty constantly out ranging after the Tories but nothing important occurred. In the fall of 1781 applicant entered service in Company commanded by Capt. Isaac White and in which he served as Lieutenant. The company was formed of White's old scouting company and some drafted men. The draft was for three months. We were attached to the command of Col. Smith. Joseph Graham a fine brave soldier was our Major. He had been Capt. and his place had been filled by Capt. Charles Polk. We crossed Yadkin leaving Fayetteville to our left, ranging on the waters of Drowning Creek which we crossed by swimming, our horses chiefly by side of canoe while the army under Rutherford marched more directly towards Wilmington. We camped one night on or near the ground where Butler had been defeated. We rode all the next day and night in pursuit of the Tories that had defeated him and in the morning came in sight of a brick house in which the enemy had a sergeant's guard at a ferry on the Cape Fear river near Wilmington. We then took four prisoners 2 British and 2 Tories. The Tories had a camp nearly a mile off at the mouth of a creek. Maj. Graham with our company Capt. Kennedy's and two others not now remembered attempted to surprise them. We left our horses with Col. Smith and went on foot accompanied by Capt. Polk's company of Cavalry. When we came in view of the Sentinel he cried very often "who are you". Before we had time to secure the materials the Tories left, Col. Smith sent an express for us. On returning we found nothing the matter, and were very much displeased with the Col. who was indeed unfit to command. We then returned homewards but continued scouting and in camps on the Cape Fear river, till we heard Cornwallis was taken. It is impossible for applicant to give an account of all the scouting or ranging expeditions in which he was engaged. He never remained long out of service from the time he first entered it to the time he returned from Wilmington except the balance of the winter after he returned from the tour in which the battle at Cowpens was fought. He believes he served at least 18 months in the Revolutionary war. He was sometimes out only a few days. Sometimes at home a few days, at the other times he would call at his home place merely to get clean cloths and biscuit. His home was then at his father's house. He always served as a volunteer. He never received a written discharge.

He can not prove his service by any living witness without great trouble and expense. There is no clergy man residing in his neighborhood. As to his character for veracity and the general belief that he served as a soldier of the revolution he refers to the following gentlemen his neighbours, Esq. Henry Ridley, Col. Moses Ridley, Esq. Wm. H. Davis, Berryman Ferguson, Esq. Thos. Cannon, Robert L. Weakley, and William Robb, Esq. He hereby relinquishes every claim whatever to a pension or annuity except the present, and declared that his name is not on the pension roll of the agency of any state.

Signed - Josias Martin

We, Robert Weakley, and Berryman Ferguson, residing in the county of Rutherford and state of Tennessee hereby certify that we are well acquainted with Josiah Martin who has subscribed and sworn to the above declaration, that we believe him to be 75 years old; that he is reputed and believed by the neighbourhood where he resides to have been a soldier of the revolution and that we concur in that opinion.

April 9th, 1833, Josiah, deposeth and saith, that by reason of old age, and the consequent loss of memory, he can not wear positively as to the precise length of his service, but according to the best of his recollection he served not less than the periods mentioned below and in the following grades:-

One month served as a private under Capt. Barber in Co. of Volunteers.
 4 months as a private under " " (Battle of Ramsours)
 3 months as a private under " White (Thomas White) Battle of
 3 months as a private under Capt. Isaac White (Coupons)
 3 months as a Lieut. under Capt. Isaac White Expedition to and for such service amounting to 14 months, I claim pension I believe that 14 months are not so long by several months as my actual service in the revolution but I can not make our greater service in consequence of being bound to fix the time of each campaign. I am apprehensive I will not be allowed for the 3 months under Capt. Isaac White in scouting after the Tories I can not however specify the various little expeditions of this character in which I was engaged under him in the spring and summer of 1781, but during this period I am confident I was out on actual service at least three months.

(Capt. Barber, Col. McDowell, Capt. White, Col. Smith)

Before me, William D. Hicks, a justice of the peace in and for said county this day personally appeared, Berryman Ferguson who after being sworn deposes as follows that he was well acquainted with Josiah Martin late of Rutherford Co. deceased and revolutionary pensioner of the U. He has known the said Josiah and Mary 20 years. They always stood high in point of respectability and were members of the Presbyterian Church. They were universally reputed to be married and so lived. They had several children the most of whom deponent knew. Deponent knew the said Josiah to be a pensioner.

MCDOWELL FAMILY

(from: "Family of Mrs. George Norman and Mrs. N. J. Ellis, of Colonel Francis Vivian Brooking Chapter, Hamburg, Ark." Arkansas Genealogical records, page 20, Volume 4)

Perhaps no single family when numerically considered, has added more to the historical glory of Western North Carolina than has the McDowell family. A similar record for the state of Kentucky has been made by a branch of these same people. A progeny distinguished in almost every walk of life has descended from these worthy sires. It would be difficult to find an old family in Western North Carolina and Eastern South Carolina that has not been in some way connected with the McDowells and the same condition abides among the pioneers of the Blue Grass State.

The following McDowells came from Donegal, Province of Ulster, Ireland, lived for a while in Pennsylvania, where they landed and from there moved to Augusta County, Virginia.

EPHRAIM, CHARLES, JOSEPH, ARCHIBALD, ROBERT

It is unquestionable that they were related but in what degree is impossible to determine with exactness at this late day. However, we know that Charles and Joseph were brothers because the will of Charles which is the second oldest recorded will in Anson County, he says: "I so leave to my well beloved brother Joseph McDowell of Frederick County, in Virginia, one brown broad cloth coat, one beaver hat and one pair of shoes boots". There is also plenty of evidence to indicate that Ephraim was an elder brother of Charles and Joseph though we have no positive statement to that effect.

Charles McDowell, came from Augusta County, Virginia and settled in what is now Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, but was then Bladen County. Mrs. Charles McDowell lived in three different counties without once moving - Bladen, Anson-1749, Mecklenburg-1762. Charles McDowell left behind him two daughters, Rachel Egan, and Corris Evans. His only son, John McDowell, came with him as did three married daughters, Elizabeth Barnes, Hannah Calloe, and Mary McPhetters.

John McDowell, only son of Charles McDowell, married Mary Ann (Irvine or Davis?) the date of his death is not known but the evidence is that he was like his cousin, John, killed in an Indian massacre while one of his return trips to Virginia. His wife is buried in Steele Creek Cemetery. She was born 1707 and died Oct. 6, 1789. There were three children:-

- 1- John McDowell, married Jane Parks (Revolutionary Soldier)
- 2- Abigail McDowell married Robert McCleary (McClary)
- 3- Elizabeth McDowell, born 1738, died 1807, married Colonel Samuel Watson (1729-1808)

Abigail McDowell and Robert McCleary, ten children:

James, Andrew, Samuel, Abigail, Ellen, Hannah, Mary, Stephen, Margaret McCleary, married Zenas Alexander, Isabella McCleary married Rev. Wm. Davis.

PENSION RECORD OF MICHAEL McLEARY

No.-S-8886

Born December 8th, 1762, York County, Pennsylvania.

November 26, 1833, Mecklenburg County North Carolina, appeared General Michael McLeary, a resident of County of Mecklenburg North Carolina aged 71, lacking twelve days, swears -- that he was a Revolutionary Soldier- entered militia service as a private soldier ; volunteered for term of 3 months, in Captain William Alexander's Company on 1st day of June 1780, was at that time in service encamped at Codle Creek in Said County under the following officers; - viz., Col. Robert Irwin's Regiment, William Haggins, Lieut. Col. James Harris, Major and served as hereafter stated. - But before we marched to Ramsours in Lincoln County North Carolina where a large body of Tories was collected. Col. William Lee Davidson (a continental officer) early in June was appointed by General Rutherford to the command of a regiment of Light Infantry while at Codle Creek, was at Ramsours and continued in command until he was wounded at Colsons near the mouth of Rocky River, in a contest with the Tories - after which he was advanced to the rank of Brigadier General-I was attached to his Regiment of light Infantry while at Codle Creek marched with him to Ramsours. The Tories was defeated; dispersed, and a number made prisoners on the 20th day June 1780 - after which general Rutherford returned with his Brigade to Mecklenburg County; was encamped at or near 6 mile Creek in July 1780. In the last of that month I took sick was sent to the Hospital in Charlotte. in a short time returned and joined my regiment and was discharged the 1st of September 1780 - volunteered immediately for 3 months longer in Col. Robert Irwin's Regiment, Captain Wm. Alexander's Company, James Tagert Lieut., on the 26th day of September Lord Cornwallis with his whole force entered Charlotte Retreated near our old encampment at Codle Creek or Rocky River, where Gen. Davidson took the most favourable position and made a stand. The British Army evacuated Charlotte on the 9th October 1780. All of which time I was one who was actively engaged in small detachments reconnoitering the British lines and harrassing them in every possible way. Your declarant was one of the 13 men under command of Lieut. James Tager who captured two Waggon's loaded with valuable stores from Camden South Carolina to Charlotte, two miles south of Charlotte and within one half mile of their Picket guard - Fired on the waggon guard killed two and took the rest prisoners; destroyed the stores - marched all night; delivered the prisoners to General Davidson next day. Your declarant was also one of the small detachment who captured an express from Lord Cornwallis to Col. Turnbull Commander of his Majesty's forces in Camden, South Carolina; your declarant further states that he was one of detachment that hung on ----? was for the purpose of picking up stragglers. Followed them to the old nation ford on the Catawba River, where they encamped all night. Hanged one of their men and left him hanging - The river being high, could not cross, marched back up the road about 10 miles, killed one of our men and took one prisoner crossed Sugar Creek marched down the River and crossed at lands Ford in South Carolina - General Davidson moved down and encamped near 6 mile Creek where he was joined by General Morgan and General Smallwood with some continental Troops which was in the month of November 1780. Gen. Morgan, Gen Smallwood did not continue long with General Davidson. Moved off to South Carolina in Quest of Col. Tarlton, defeated him at the Cowpens on Jan. 17, 1781 - I was discharged from my second tour of 3 months on first December 1780. Volunteered again for 3 months as a horseman, found my own horse in Captain John Brounfield's Co. but was transferred to another before my time of service expired in the same Regiment and General Davidson Brigade who was watching the movements of Lord Cornwallis who appeared determined to recross the river and march through the country. General Davidson made the best possible disposition of his force by placing guards at every ford that was thought the enemy would cross and and fortifying them in the best probable manner. Had his headquarters at Tuckers Ford as it was thought they would cross at that ford. Your declarant and the Company he belonged to was stationed at that ford and on the evening of 31st January 1781, the British Army crossed the river at that place at dawn, February 1, 1781- The General was killed at Cowpens. Received the news that night by express - Broke up camp in the night marched towards Salisbury Hatted sometime to collect the scattered Tories after which continued in service until after the Battle of Guilford which was on the 15th March 1781 - which makes 9 months in the 3 tours.

I was born December 8, 1762, in York County Pennsylvania. My age is recorded in the family Bible which I have not. I was living in the County of Mecklenburg, North Carolina, when called into service

(NOTE: In the History of the McDOWELL family, there is the statement that this General McLeary was the brother of our Robert McCleary who married Abigail McDowell. I do not have any proof to that effect however. R.W.L.)
